

BIG CHANGES ARE PLANNED BY RAILROADS

The Santa Fe Will Relocate Line in a Number of Places on Account of Storms.

MUCH ACTIVITY CONTEMPLATED

"There is much activity in railroad circles in New Mexico and Arizona and the construction of those roads will be of great benefit to Denver and Colorado," said Frank S. Lusk, the railroad contractor, to the Denver Republican. "The Santa Fe is planning to relocate its transcontinental line, which means practically the construction of a new railroad in New Mexico. It is desired to get away from what might be termed the 'cloud burst section' of the territory. The Southern Pacific is also planning some changes, but its principal business at present seems to be efforts to block the Santa Fe."

Both roads are fighting for various passes and canyons and rights of way that are of great value. There are numerous box canyons desired that have perpendicular sides, and where there is room for only one road. I understand that the Santa Fe, however, has been successful thus far in securing such passes and canyons as it desires, and that it will be equally successful in securing others.

The Santa Fe, in its new line, which is termed a cut-off, will not only avoid the cloudburst section, where it has lost thousands upon thousands of dollars, and where it has caused innumerable and long suspensions of business, but it will avoid Raton hill and other steep grades. This means a big reduction in grades, as well as a reduction in curves, and it all means that it will be reasonably safe to do business the year around, and, what is more, haul heavier loads.

"This work of the Santa Fe is one planned years ago and contemplated, I believe, a cut-off from a point on the main line in Kansas through the southwestern corner of Colorado to the main line. I am not thoroughly familiar with the entire plan of the company, but do know that it means a tremendous saving in cost of operation.

Just what plans the Southern Pacific contemplates I do not know. The company, however, proposed numerous shortenings in its line and reductions in curves and grades.

Perhaps the road that will mean more than any other to Colorado and Denver is the one to be built from Durango south to Lordsburg. It opens a new country and connects with the Phelps-Dodge system of roads in Arizona and New Mexico. This road will be built beyond question. True, it has so often been said that it would be constructed that people have begun to look upon such a statement rather as a joke, but this time it is no joke, but an actual fact.

Southern Colorado coal must be gotten down into New Mexico and Arizona and when the Durango road is built it can be transported direct and at a nominal price into the territories and distributed by the Phelps-Dodge roads. That means a tremendous activity in the southern coal fields. The construction of the road, too, means the shipment of Colorado agricultural and horticultural products into the southwest.

The Phelps-Dodge syndicate produces 6,000 tons of copper mott annually and has plants at Morenci, Globe, Bisbee and Douglas in Arizona, and at Nacogdoches, New Mexico. It began the construction of railroads to get its products from the mines to the smelters and the products of the latter out as well as to furnish supplies. It has connected up the numerous bits of road that either built or bought and it now has a system in New Mexico and Arizona of 600 miles of standard gauge railroad.

I built considerable pride of the work. The line to Morenci is the most remarkable railroad I have ever seen. There are five loops in eighteen miles and three loops in a mile and a half. It crosses one box canyon on an eighty-foot steel girder bridge that is 100 feet high. It is purely a business road, however, and only a stray tourist ever goes over it, but it is certainly a wonder. These Phelps-Dodge roads, naturally, form a network of roads in the two territories and when the Durango road connects with the system you can easily see the immense benefits that will accrue to Denver and Colorado.

All that country down there naturally looks to Denver as the big city and they naturally turn to Denver for all their machinery. The demand for machinery in the two territories is enormous and all this trade should come to Denver and will when railroad communication is more easily secured."

Mr. Lusk is enthusiastic over the outlook for the territories and says that a few years hence will see the completion of roads. His declaration of the construction of the Durango-Lordsburg line is the most important bit of railroad news that Denver has had for some time, and the fact that the Santa Fe will change its line is also good news. The railroad work outlined by him means the expenditures of many millions of dollars in New Mexico and Arizona.

H. J. Simmons, general manager of the Phelps-Dodge roads, was in town a few days ago on business connected with his roads.

The Stadium is much improved this year. The Japanese acrobats, etc., giving a very interesting performance.

"The Devil's Chimney" stunt was cut out last night on account of the young man hurting his back in the ladder ride just before. However, this will take place this evening.

Edward Patton, who "Leaps the Gap" in the Stadium did the stunt last night, but it was marred by a slight accident. The apparatus was not properly put up and the sidewalk along Fourth street interfered. However, Patton was only scratched about the face and this morning said he would be "on deck" tonight and the runway will be properly adjusted.

Taken as a whole, the Nat Reiss Southern Carnival company is the best organization in the west today and their different shows well deserve the hearty support and liberal patronage that they are enjoying in the Duke City.

A fine list of free attractions are given every afternoon and evening.

Found Guilty.

William Geaton, on trial at Roswell, was found guilty of the murder of Henry Jones. The jury rendered a verdict of guilty in the second degree.

The prisoner was pleased with the verdict. The case was one of the most sensational in the history of the south west.

Mothers Praise It.

Mothers everywhere praise One Minute Cough Cure for the sufferings it has relieved and the lives of their little ones it has saved. A certain cure for coughs, croup and whooping cough.

A. L. Stafford, Postmaster, of Chelsea, Mich., says: "Our little girl was unconscious from strangulation during a sudden and terrible attack of croup. One Minute Cough Cure quickly relieved and cured her, and I cannot praise it too highly." One Minute Cough Cure relieves coughs, makes breathing easy, cuts out phlegm, draws out inflammation, and removes every cause of a cough and strain on lungs. Sold by B. H. Briggs & Co. and S. Vann & Son.

Investigating Pecos Mines.

Alfred H. Cowles, of Cleveland, O., is on a visit to the properties of the Pecos Mining company, west of Glorieta, and about twenty-two miles from Santa Fe, says the New Mexican.

He is accompanied by J. C. Gifford and son, of Chicago, who are also interested in the company. The claims owned by the Pecos Mining company in that section have been worked for several years and of late systematic development has commenced. New mining machinery costing in the neighborhood of $15,000 has recently been put in. W. O. Alexander, of Cerrillos, is the superintendent. There are about twenty men at work there now and the prospects for a good out-put are ripe.

The Tonto Dam of Arizona.

Bill for the actual construction of the great Tonto Dam will be opened by the geological survey January 7. It is understood that the contract for the whole gigantic monolithic structure will be let in the neighbor hood of $2,000,000. Thus far the work has been altogether preparatory, including construction of the cement plant, the building of the power canal and the construction of roads and the digging of the service tunnel through the rocks around one side of the dam site.

Though the rock at the site is of the hardest character and it is not believed that leakage will occur to the slightest degree, a hot spring has been struck in the service tunnel, and it has been found that such springs are by no means uncommon along the northern bank of the river.

The Kind That Carries Conviction to Every Albuquerque Reader.

Conviction must follow such emphatic proof as is given here. The testimony of Albuquerque residents should satisfy the most skeptical. Here is an Albuquerque case. Read it and see if doubt can exist in the face of this evidence.

W. R. Tripp, engineer at The Hotel Alvarado, residence #1 South Broadway says: "If buckache had been my only symptom of kidney trouble my case would probably have been very simple, but when there was added to it trouble with the kidney secretions, the application did not respond to medicine as readily as I expected. About once every year I had these attacks and the use of Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at the Alvarado pharmacy tided me over one which was only a succession of similar procedures. For six months I have had immunity from the annoyance and if Doan's Kidney Pills can be depended upon to act as they did when they first came to my notice I know what to use should the attack recur in the future."

For sale by all dealers. Price 25c.
